

I tried to visualize the impact of the HIV/AIDS crisis and how Africa is especially impacted. I also tried to find some correlation between other datasets we have that might create the big difference between Africa and other continents. I used bar graphs to plot the data and separated the data into three 10-year periods. Even though I couldn't find correlations between our datasets about the topic, second time period shows the peak of the crisis as the death rates nearly doubled compared to the previous decade and also in the last 10 years, the efforts to fight the crisis yielded results as in the last decade the numbers are cut in half in nearly every continent.
